

Medicine, Nursing and Health Sciences

Occupational Health

School of Public Health and Preventive Medicine

Occupational Health

Occupational health aims to identify risk factors for chronic illnesses in the workplace and to improve the health of workers.

Capabilities

Extensive expertise in:

- Occupational medicine
- Occupational hygiene
- Public health medicine
- Epidemiology and biostatistics
- Musculoskeletal disorders
- Workplace mental health
- Ergonomics
- Toxicology

Application

- Cohort studies investigating hazards in several industries
- Case control studies of occupational risk factors
- Health screening in the workplace
- Disease registries
- Exposure assessment methodologies
- Systematic reviews
- Veteran health studies
- Analysis of compensation data
- Translating research into policy and practice in the workplace

More details

www.coeh.monash.org/

Training

- Short Courses
- Undergraduate Programs eg. MBBS (occupational medicine in the medical course)
- Postgraduate programs eg. MPH, PhD, Dr Public Health, MOEH, GradDipOEH and GradCertOEH

Some Major Projects

- Health of workers in the Aluminium Industry (Healthwise cohort study)
- Health of workers in the Petroleum industry (Health Watch cohort study)
- Australian Mesothelioma Registry
- Gulf War veteran health study
- Musculoskeletal disorders in nurses
- Evaluation of the Work Health program
- Noise induced hearing loss
- Cohort study of Australian firefighters

Contact Us

med-moncoeh@monash.edu

Tel: +61 03 9903 0584

Fax: +61 03 9903 0556

Web: www.coeh.monash.org

The Alfred Centre
Level 6
99 Commercial Road
Melbourne VIC 3004
Australia

facebook.com/Monash.University

twitter.com/MonashUni

