The John Murtagh Annual Update Course for General Practitioners

Novotel, St Kilda, Melbourne, Australia
7 – 9 November 2012
The University is pleased to once again present the John Murtagh Annual Update Course for General Practitioners which continues to be a regular feature on the postgraduate calendar. The topics and speakers that have been selected represent a first class educational package. Many of the chosen topics have been requested by those who have enjoyed the course for the past two to three years. We are especially privileged to have two distinguished professors and heads of department who are presenting for the first time in our course. They are the eminent neurosurgeon and head of surgery at the Alfred Hospital, Professor Jeffrey Rosenfeld and Professor Peter Gibson, Director of Gastroenterology at the Alfred Hospital and Central Clinical School. The professor and head of General Practice, Danielle Mazza will present perspectives on research and gynaecological cancer involvement. A special feature will be the opportunity to upgrade skills in cardiopulmonary resuscitation on Friday afternoon. This is an optional inclusion which has been requested for doctors who have limited opportunities to access this requirement. We are pleased to welcome Dr Heather Grusauskas who as Acting Director of Graduate Studies is the course convener. I look forward to seeing you at the course in November.

Welcome to the John Murtagh Update Course for 2012. The School of Primary Health Care and the Department of General Practice is proud to once again convene this important event in the general practice teaching and learning calendar. The programme this year has been structured to optimise learning in key areas of clinical general practice education. As John has indicated we have presentations from the “Best of the Best” which include those from staff within the Department of General Practice and also presentations from key clinical leaders in primary and acute care settings. The Update course will truly be a celebration of what is best in general practice clinical learning at Monash.

We are pleased to announce that this year Michael Sewell will be facilitating workshops in cardiopulmonary resuscitation. This is a great opportunity for you to extend your skills in CPR whilst you are at the Update Course. Full details of this workshop is available in a separate brochure.

We would also like to extend an invitation to your registrars to attend this highlight event in the general practice training year and encourage you to support their attendance at the Update Course.

Finally, the Update Course provides you with a great opportunity to network with your colleagues.

On behalf of the organising committee we are looking forward to meeting you in November 2012.
